KEVIN YON NAMED 2018 SC FARMER OF THE YEAR

A son and grandson of sharecroppers, Angus breeder Kevin Yon and his family have established Yon Family Farms as one of the best Angus seedstock herds in the nation.

As a result of his success as a beef producer, Yon has been selected as state winner of the Swisher Sweets/Sunbelt Expo Southeastern Farmer of the Year award. He joins nine other individuals as finalists for the overall award that will be announced on October 16 at the Sunbelt Expo farm show in Moultrie, Ga.

important crops. Last year these crops on 695 acres yielded four tons of round bale silage per acre. He produced Bermuda grass hay on 642 acres yielding six tons per acre.

This year, he's growing his first soybeans, mainly for crop rotation. He started growing pecans in 2016, for diversification. The family also owns a retail store in Ridge Spring.

Kevin bought his first commercial herd of cattle while in high school. He met his wife Lydia when they were animal science students at Clemson University. After graduation, Kevin managed the beef herd at Congaree Farms near Columbia and was able to buy half of that Angus herd. The Yons then moved to Ridge Spring where they improved and expanded their herd.

Yon is currently serving as president of the 25,000-member American Angus Association.

In 2009, the Yon farm received the National Environmental Stewardship Award from the National Cattlemen's Beef Association. On the state level, Kevin has served as president of the SC Cattlemen's Association and Angus Association.

The Yons are especially proud that their three children and two of their children's spouses have come back to work on the farm. Their daughter Sally works in marketing and care of the cattle. Sons Corbin and Drake manage the pecans and the row crops.

As the state winner of the Swisher Sweets/Sunbelt Expo award, Yon will receive a $2,500 cash award and an expense-paid trip to the Sunbelt Expo from Swisher International of Jacksonville, Fla., a $500 gift certificate from Southern States cooperative, and a Columbia vest from Ivey's Outdoor and Farm Supply.

He is now eligible for the $15,000 that will go to the overall winner. Other prizes include use of a Massey Ferguson tractor for a year from Massey Ferguson North America, another $500 gift certificate from Southern States, and a smoker-grill from Hays LTI.

Swisher International, through its Swisher Sweets cigar brand, and the Sunbelt Expo are sponsoring the Southeastern Farmer of the Year awards for the 29th consecutive year. Swisher has contributed some $1.1 million since the award was initiated in 1990.

South Carolina has had two overall winners, Ron Stephenson of Chester in 1994 and James Cooley of Chesnee in 2013.

The Yon farm encompasses some 4,258 acres with 2,515 acres of rented land and 1,743 acres of owned land in Ridge Spring.

Each year, the Yons sell about 375 bulls and 150 females in two on-farm sales. They also sell cattle in private treaty sales. Their herd includes about 1,200 registered breeding age females, 590 commercial breeding age females and 90 steers and heifers that are fed out.

Forages are Yon's most

FARMING INDOORS IN SOUTH CAROLINA?

Does South Carolina have a role to play as the world's population grows and agriculture faces a production challenge? I posed this question in one of my April columns after traveling to the Netherlands to study Controlled Environment Agriculture (CEA), which you might think of as indoor precision farming to the maximum degree. During my trip to this small country – the world's number two food exporter – I visited farm operations that had anywhere from 20 to 200 acres of greenhouse facilities. Needless to say, the Dutch are world leaders in this type of farming.

My visit was part of a larger CEA study commissioned by the Palmetto Agribusiness Council to determine the viability of developing this type of farming in South Carolina. Why bother with such a study? Well, here's what I quoted in my April column that comes from numerous industry experts: The world's population is expected to grow to 10 billion by 2050. Farmers around the world will have to grow more food in the next 40 years than has ever been grown period.

The results of the CEA study were presented to the agribusiness council earlier this month, and they conclude that South Carolina has a significant opportunity to develop a strong CEA industry. The research team's conclusion is based on a number of factors, including advances in production technology over the last five years, South Carolina's well-developed agriculture base and a high market demand for year-round, locally sourced produce. In addition, the relationships we have developed with growers in the Netherlands and the expertise at Clemson University and other colleges and universities in the state are key advantages as we consider the skill-sets necessary for this type of farming.

Growing produce and other crops inside greenhouses or containers with precisely controlled temperatures and climates won't be for everyone; I believe traditional farming practices will always play an important role in local and global agriculture. But CEA could offer current and future specialty crop growers a sustainable and efficient way to meet the demands of a growing and hungry population.

A lot of ducks have to get lined up in a row in South Carolina if CEA is going to live into the potential described in this interesting study. There are educational, financial and technological considerations, just for starters. We will continue our exploration, and as usual, I'll keep you posted.

USDA OPENS ELECTION PERIOD FOR SEED COTTON PROGRAM

Seed cotton producers who want to participate in the Agriculture Risk Coverage and Price Loss Coverage programs for the 2018 crop year may submit applications to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The sign-up period ends on December 7, 2018.

Farm owners with generic base acres and recent planting history of covered commodities have a one-time opportunity to allocate all of the generic base acres on their farm.

Producers have two options to allocate generic base:

- Option 1: Allocate generic base acres on a farm to seed cotton base acres equal to the higher of the following:
- 80 percent of the generic base acres on the farm
 - The remaining 20 percent goes to unassigned base acres for which there will be no payments
 - The average of planted and prevented from planted upland cotton acres on the farm in crop years 2009 through 2012, not to exceed the total generic base acres on the farm.

Option 2: Allocate generic base acres in proportion to the 4-year average acreage planted on the farm and prevented from being planted for each covered commodity, including upland cotton, in crop years 2009 through 2012, to the total acreage planted and considered planted for all covered commodities on the farm.

The producer will have a one-time opportunity to elect either Agriculture Risk Coverage or Price Loss Coverage for the seed cotton base acres. The final step is enrolling in ARC/PLC for 2018. Producers must enroll the farm for it to be eligible. Enrollment will end on Dec. 7, 2018.

Visit www.fsa.usda.gov or your local FSA office for more information.

SCHOOL MAKES AGRICULTURE COME ALIVE

The 2018 SC Commissioner’s School for Agriculture was a great success, with 38 high school juniors and seniors learning about future careers in ag. Students spent time in workshops and laboratories at Clemson University and in the field to study their emphasis areas of interest.

Some of their hands-on activities included a calving simulator, precision agriculture technology, packaging and analytics, and stream assessment. They also toured Titan Farms to learn about packing and shipping, studied living creatures found in streams, got up close with athletic turf grass, and heard about opportunities available in agriculture.

TEA

- 3-4 tea bags

PEACH ICED TEA

2. Once the sugar is dissolved, cover, remove from heat and let steep for 25-30 minutes.
3. In the meantime, brew your tea using either a large pot or a tea maker.
4. Once brewed, remove tea bags and transfer to a pitcher. Refrigerate to cool.
5. Once your simple syrup is finished, pour into a bottle or container over a fine mesh strainer to strain out peaches. You can reserve the peaches for later use, such as to place over oats or ice cream sundaes.
